

THE YEAR IN REVIEW MIDDLE EAST 2021

A WELCOME FROM OUR REGIONAL DIRECTOR

A warm welcome to our “Year in Review” the first in a series of publications to keep you informed and updated about the CII’s activities. I am delighted to bring you a summary of highlights from 2021 and am excited to be introducing our plans for 2022.

As ever, the feedback and input of our stakeholders and members is essential in allowing us to shape our approach and execute a strategy which is continually relevant and effective. Our consultation exercise, “Shaping the Future Together” was launched this Autumn, and I encourage you to participate by visiting our website, [As 2022 beckons, we are ready to contribute to an exciting and evolving insurance/ financial planning landscape. We look forward to keeping you up to date with our news and with industry specific content, with more communications like this one, as well as through our website and social channels.](http://www.Home | Chartered Insurance Institute (CII) where you can provide feedback - your opinions and views are most appreciated.<div data-bbox=)

Wishing you seasons greetings, and all the very best for 2022.

Gaenor Jones
Regional Director
Middle East

As 2021 comes to a close, we can reflect on a year that brought change and innovation as we navigated the new working normal. Virtual webinars enabled us to collaborate with a wealth of stakeholders and partners, where we were able to keep the insurance and financial planning sectors informed and engaged on many salient topics, including CyberSecurity, Professionalism Building Public Trust, Post COVID Insurance Landscape, and the myriad benefits of CII membership.

We also forged official partnerships with some of the region’s most esteemed academic institutions, who continue to recognise the value of embedding CII qualifications into their learning development programmes. Working closely with regulators, to embrace their evolving agendas and support the implementation of minimum qualification levels has remained priority for us and will continue to do so.

ENCOURAGING WORDS FROM THE CEOS

Ilango T.
CEO of Qatar Insurance Company

The importance of having technically qualified professionals has always been recognized by Qatar Insurance Company and it has been the cornerstone of our vision and success for close to 60 years. The pursuit of professional qualifications by our personnel, from the Chartered Insurance Institute, has helped our company in many ways. Our qualified personnel are well placed to analyze and understand the insurance requirements of our valued clients and offer customized solutions. Our Reinsurers derive enhanced levels of confidence and comfort of dealing with a high-quality Insurer. This environment also helps us to attract and retain best talents.

Stuart McCulloch,
Dip PFS
Market Head of The Fry Group ME

CII Membership enables us to maintain consistent standards across the business globally. We chose to align ourselves with the CII because it is a highly respected examination and development body that is known across the industry. The Fry Group also continues to benefit hugely from the many seminars and training events the CII run to support our organisation and its individuals with any professional development requirements. The CII has a long-respected history of supporting finance professionals to become qualified, so I would expect many non-qualified individuals to see the CII as the go-to qualification body if it became mandatory.

Syed Asim, ACII
CEO of Orient UNB Takaful PJSC

A certified CII professional is undoubtedly an asset to a company, given the dynamic global market conditions, especially amidst the pandemic and various other recent regional catastrophes. Risks are continuously evolving thereby requiring budding insurance professionals to augment their market understanding and assessment criteria through professional certifications. Regulatory initiatives are easier to implement with a team of trained professionals thereby allowing for an easier transition.

A HOST OF MEMBERSHIP BENEFITS

Membership of the CII offers a wealth of benefits, including access to learning, content and events to facilitate Continuous Professional Development, the use of CII designations for those with CII qualifications, and commitment to a code of ethics that enhances a member's reputation.
